NEOS GOES MOBILE!

Neos, the exciting and innovative electronic gaming system from Playworld has generated huge interest since its launch last year, and now Playworld has developed a new trailer-mounted version of the game.

Mobile Neos offers the same exhilarating entertainment value as the usual model yet is permanently fixed to a trailer, so that it can be moved around from place to place in communities. On arrival at each venue, the trailer is parked up, the sides go down and the fun begins!

Neos comprises four columns with interactive sounds and lights buttons and an electronic score board in the centre. The buttons light up in random sequence depending on game selection and provide a fast and exciting new way to play outdoors. Neos encourages memory retention, hand-eye coordination, physical strength and endurance, as well as social interaction and healthy competition.

Given all these benefits, it is perhaps not surprising that orders for Neos are coming in from local authorities and leisure parks alike, with installations taking place in Wolverhampton and Gullivers Kingdom theme park this month.

Commenting on mobile Neos, Jerry Widdas, managing director at Playworld said, "After touring with Neos up and down the country, we took the bold decision to create a trailer-mounted version of the game which offers customers more scope and opportunity to reach wider parts of the community such as schools and leisure centres. We have been very pleased with the response generated by Neos, and we are sure that the mobile Neos will be equally as successful."
